

Celebrations that shaped our Contemporary Mexico

The history of Mexico takes us through a chronological and demonstrable narrative of past events related to the people who inhabit Mexican territory, a country located in North America.

In 1821, the Mexican nation declared its independence from Spain, initially adopting an imperial form of government, which was short-lived. Later, it was decided that Mexico would become a Federal Republic made up of free and sovereign states.

This is exemplified by the 32 states that make up the country. A fundamental part of the state is its institutions, which have influenced the nation's progress and development. These institutions play a key role in economic growth by supporting the market system; if they are weak, they hinder growth.

Other factors that influence the development of a nation include education and knowledge, culture, competitiveness, and national identity. Some basic social institutions are the family, the educational system, religion, the economic system, and the government.

Today, Mexico is a sovereign nation with a robust legal system and a constitution that guarantees the fundamental rights and freedoms of its citizens.

Sovereignty is the most important value of Mexican nationality; it ensures the ability of Mexicans to make decisions freely.

Likewise, the political, social, and civil institutions are now part of this collective legacy, which stems from the nation's development. As mentioned, Mexico has been built through its history, sovereignty, human rights, equality, and everything that contributes to the growth of this nation.
